Mark Dodd, Executive Director, Kansas State Gaming Agency, provided an overview on the Agency. (Attachment 1) The four tribes that make up the Tribal State Compact are the Iowa Tribe of Kansas and Nebraska, the Prairie Band Potawatomi Nation of Kansas, the Kickapoo Tribe, and the Sac and Fox Nation of Missouri; each signed the Compact with the State of Kansas in 1995. By 1998, each Tribe had opened its own casino in Kansas, and continues to operate today. Each is regulated by a Tribal Gaming Commission. The gaming activities of each casino are monitored by the Kansas State Gaming Agency (KSGA or Agency). It is important to note that the Wyandotte Nation is not one of the tribes listed that have a current Tribal-State Compact, thus the Agency does not have any regulatory authority over their casino operation located in Kansas City, Kansas; that casino is a Class II facility.

The Agency has a mission and goal which includes protecting the integrity of gaming by ensuring compliance with the Tribal-State Compacts, the Tribal Gaming Oversight Act, and applicable federal and state laws. The Agency's organization is made up of an enforcement unit and a special investigations unit. The Kansas State Gaming Agency is responsible for conducting background investigations on all employees connected with the gaming operations at each casino. The Agency is also responsible for conducting background investigations on all vendors who sell more than $10,000 per year in gaming equipment to a tribal casino in Kansas. Licensing of gaming employees and vendors is done entirely by the Tribal Gaming Commissions who can and do occasionally object to particular applicants.

The Kansas Racing and Gaming Commission (KRGC) regulates the state owned casinos and the Kansas State Gaming Agency (KSGA) regulates the tribal casinos. Mr. Dodd stated that according to the terms of the Tribal-State Compacts, he was not able to share specific information about the activities of any particular casino, and such information is not public record and is considered confidential.

The next meeting is scheduled for January 11, 2012. The meeting was adjourned at 11:20 a.m.
