

Re: HB 2601

February 10, 2020

Dear Education Committee Members,

I am the mother of four children. All of my children have allergies to something. Because of this we have to be careful of what they eat and what they are exposed to. Every time I take them to the doctor I list their allergies and their doctor makes decisions on what the best course of treatment will be, based on their history and of course, their allergies. There are medicines they cannot take because of these allergies. This is common practice for every doctor. Just because one type of medicine works for these other 10 children, does not mean it will work, or be safe, for my child. Doctors do not practice “one size fits all” medicine because it would be malpractice – EXCEPT in the case of vaccines. Why is that?

Could it be that in the case of vaccinations there is no liability for the Pharmaceutical companies or anyone in the health field, whereas in all other areas of medicine there is liability? As of October, 2019 the Government has paid out over $4.2 Billion in compensation for vaccine injuries so we know that children are injured by these vaccines, yet they are continually forced on children without testing (which many of the inserts recommend) to see if the particular child could be harmed by them?

I question the safety of vaccines. Under the 1986 National Childhood Vaccination Injury Act, HHS is required to provide biennial vaccine safety reports to Congress. In 2018, in ICAN vs. HHS, the U.S. Dept. of Health and Human Services admitted that it failed to provide a single vaccine safety report to Congress for 30 years. Admittedly, I don't know for sure that my children's allergies were caused by vaccinations, but I highly suspect it and am incensed that, after the fact, I find that HHS can't even verify to Congress that they are safe?

I am opposed to any forced medical procedure for me or my children, and that is exactly what forced vaccinations are – a FORCED MEDICAL PROCEDURE. It is as ridiculous to me as forcing all children to have tonsillectomies before they can go to school. This bill, which I wholeheartedly support, is the most reasonable measure I have heard in a long time and I implore you to vote yes on it.
